LIVELY MEETING OF TOWN COUNCIL IS NOW IN VIEW.

First Session of the Month Is Scheduled for Tomorrow Night and There May Be Doings.

HELD OVER CALENDAR FULL

South Side Sewer Proposition Is Likely to Go Through—School Board Meeting Tonight but There Is Nothing of Great Importance On.

The Borough School Board meets tonight and the Town Council is scheduled to meet in regular session tomorrow night. The School Board meeting promises to be a tame affair as little business of importance is scheduled to come before it, but the meeting of the Town Council will probably be lively. The South Side sewer question is likely to be disposed of as it is said that the powers to be ordered an ordinance drawn to give the South Siders relief.

Recently the efforts of the treasury have received large additions from Tax Collector Brown and it would not be surprising to have a goodly portion of this expended. The street horses have arrived, and it is being gently whispered, but not confirmed that they are $300 steers. Whether the cost sheet will be exhibited at the meeting or not, is not known. Altogether the Town Council meeting Tuesday evening promises some interesting developments which may interest a good many people.

There are still remaining on the hold over calendar many questions of importance, the extension of Eighth street paving, the opening up of Tenth street, the granting of lighting privileges and so many other things that are too numerous to mention.

Greater interest than ever is being taken in the meetings of Council than ever before and the rooms for the 33 members are getting entirely too small to accommodate the enlarged Council and the large number of citizens that gather there. A committee has charge of enlarging and providing new and better quarters for the Council, and at this meeting the committee may report its views in this regard.

SMACKED FELLOW FOR LOOKING AT HORSE

Is Arrested By Baltimore & Ohio Officers and Sentenced on Charge of Drunkenness.

Charles Rogers of Pittsburgh was the only man arrested on Saturday and he was landed by Lieutenant Russell of the Baltimore & Ohio police force. Rogers was given 48 hours for being drunk. According to his story he was guarding the horses shipped from Somerset by the National Guard and smacked a fellow who was trying to climb in the car. Russell appeared on his scene and arrested him. He admitted having a drink or two and was committed on that charge.

Four cows were arrested on the West Side Saturday by Officers George Francis and Stoner.

FIRST PROSTRATION FROM HEAT REPORTED

Rev. C. E. Wagner of the Reformed Church Collapsed Saturday in His Study.

The first heat prostration in this section so far during the torrid spell occurred Saturday morning when Rev. C. E. Wagner, pastor of the Trinity Reformed Church, succumbed to the effects of the weather and collapsed. He was attended by Dr. Thomas B. Eckard and is reported to be entirely out of danger.

Rev. Wagner was at work in his study Saturday when overcome by the heat. He fell heavily, receiving severe bruises to his face and limbs. Owing to the accident to Rev. Wagner it was necessary to call off the services in the church yesterday.

Defendant Pays Costs. Joseph Ometlick of Leisenring No. 2 was given a hearing Saturday evening before Squire P. M. Buttermore of the West Side on a charge of disorderly conduct, made by Mrs. Anna Corick, also of Leisenring.

The arrest was made by Constable William Roland of Dunbar township. The case was settled by the defendant paying a fine and costs.

Many on Excursions. A large number of Connellsville people spent Sunday at various resorts, the cheap excursions being attractive to them.

MONONGAH BURNED OUT.

Fire Destroys 20 Buildings, With Loss of $75,000.

FAIRMONT, W. Va., August 1.—Fire at Monongah yesterday inflicted losses aggregating $75,000, partially covered by insurance. In a space of two hours 20 buildings, including residences and business places, were destroyed. The blaze originated in the Graco restaurant from defective wiring. Levi Olfert, David Levy, L. Kuhn, Tony Salvato and Joe Rucker, merchants, were the heaviest losers. The Curry Hotel, First National Bank, Opera House and police station were damaged. Several residences were consumed.

RAILROAD TRAFFIC IN COKE AND IRON BETTER

Department of Commerce and Labor Makes a Good Report on It.

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 2.—Improved conditions in railway traffic and in the movements of coke and iron ore are characteristics of the June internal commerce report of the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Commerce and Labor. The live stock, grain and provision movements show a decrease in volume compared with the figures of the corresponding month of last year, and the extreme activity in building which characterized the reports of the earlier months of the year shows some signs of abatement.

The June shipments of bituminous coal over eight of the leading Eastern coal-carrying roads, 7,911,711 tons, compare favorably with 6,988,004 tons transported during June, 1908. The coke traffic in June over these roads, 1,921,451 tons, shows the largest monthly total for the year and exceeded by 75 per cent. the quantity reported for June, 1908. The estimated coke production at the Connellsville district for the five weeks ending June 26, 1,218,826 net tons, was 47 per cent. in excess of the corresponding 1908 output. The number of loaded cars shipped to points of consumption, 44,004, shows practically the same rate of increase.

A decline in the shipments of anthracite coal, both as compared with the 1908 figures as well as the figures for the earlier months of the year, is shown by the June figures, 4,304,868 gross tons. The anthracite shipments for the first six months of the year, 31,951,730 gross tons, were lower than the six months' totals for the two preceding years. The pig iron output during the month, 1,920,884 gross tons, was larger than for any month since October, 1907, notwithstanding the fact that several of the merchant furnaces show a reduced output. The improvement in the iron trade is seen best from the fact that the monthly lake shipments of iron ore from Lake Superior and Lakes Michigan and Huron, 250,687 gross tons, were more than double the shipments reported for June of last year.

SHOT FROM HILL HURTS LAD LIVING AT DUNBAR

According to His Story Three Men Came Upon Them and One Fired Off a Gun.

Edward McGivern is at the hospital suffering from an injured foot, which was struck by a bullet yesterday afternoon. McGivern, 17 years old, was walking along the river bank with two other boys when three men were seen on the hill above them. There was a sudden shot and McGivern received the bullet in his foot.

The men were too far off to be recognized by any of the boys and the cause of their action is a mystery. The lad was removed to the Cottage State hospital where Dr. E. B. Edie removed the bullet. The wound is not a serious one.

There is a suspicion in the minds of some of those who saw the wound cause of their action is a mystery, by accident. The bullet took such a course, it is said, that it is hardly possible that anyone else could have fired the shot, especially from so great a distance. McGivern persists in his statement that one of the three strangers did the shooting.

A Quiet Sunday. Sunday was an extremely quiet day. The rain in the morning, kept many indoors all day.

Gas at Garrett. Garrett, Md., this week was supplied for the first time by natural gas.

RECORDS SMASHED.

Mercury Arose to 92 Saturday Afternoon, But Sunday Was Cooler.

Saturday smashed some heat records for the mercury rose to 92 degrees in the afternoon. Hot as it was last week, the 92 mark was the record for the six days. It got up to 89 once, but it seemed lots hotter to the sweltering mass of humanity who suffered in silence.

Yesterday morning the mercury started at 74, bringing with it a shower, and the weather was moderate all day. Today the record was 70 degrees, the lowest mark for a week.

STATE MILITIA TO QUIET THINGS AT GARY

Likely That a Detachment of Indiana State Troops Will Be Sent There.

GARY, Ind., August 2.—The State militia of Indiana will be ordered to take the Gary situation in hand within a few days by order of Governor Marshall. If Mayor Thomas E. Knotts, Chief of Police J. D. Martin or Prosecuting Attorney Charles Greenwald do not take it upon themselves to purge Gary of its crime immediately, this ultimatum was delivered to a committee which waited upon the State chief executive and in a conference submitted to him data on the reign of crime in the new steel city. Among those present were A. C. Matthews, attorney for the anti-saloon league of Indiana, and the local representative of the temperance organization, Otto J. Bruce.

Letters demanding action have already been sent to the Lake county officials by Gov. Marshall in which they are warned that upon failure to comply State troops will be camped on the streets of Gary within the next few days. Realizing that further apathy on their part would mean additional disgrace to the "magic city," a conference was called this afternoon by Mayor Knotts and Chief Martin with Prosecutor Greenwald and his deputy, W. F. Hodges, in which the latter were asked to agree upon a plan of action. The city officials who have heretofore ignored the lawless condition in Gary, made a point blank proposition to the prosecutors to defer further action against the blind tigers until the saloon owners could dispose of their stock. At a stated time these places if still in operation would be raided and the liquor confiscated.

Deputy Prosecutor Hodges, who is in charge of the local situation, replied that the present crusade would never be stopped and that no leniency would be shown to a single violator of the law.

NO LET UP IN STERN WAR METHODS

Spain Intends to Fight It Out With Moroccans on Old Basis.

United Press Telegram. MADRID, August 2.—War with Morocco will go on and there will be no let up in the stern methods to check the revolution at home. Ignoring the advice of both the cabinet and the military advisers, King Alfonso decided today to uphold the policy of Francisco Franco.

The harshness which is generally held responsible for the serious condition at home and abroad is attributed to him. The King met with the ministers and advisers today and a majority of the cabinet frankly told Alfonso of Franco's severity and dangerous views, and begged him to modify the Premier's policy for the safety of the dynasty.

Military advisers told the King that the Moroccan war was sure to be a repetition of the disastrous war in Cuba. The King was deaf to the pleadings, and announced that for the present the government upheld the Premier.

HEALTH BOARD AFTER THE GARBAGE MEN

Demands Covered Wagons in Which To Cart Away the Refuse From Homes.

Health Officer Allen Hyatt is on the warpath again. This time the representative of the Board of Health is after the scums of the garbage collectors. Complaints have been numerous against these people and aroused Hyatt from his lethargy long enough to open fire on the enemy. Hyatt says that all garbage collectors must have covered wagons and the covers must be kept down when the wagons are on the streets or alleys. Any violation of this order will result in prosecutions.

It is also ordered by the Health Officer that the butchers of town must observe great care with their meats and if it must be protected from microbes.

ANNIE KERR IS UNDER ARREST.

One of the Witnesses in Jail Scandal is Charged With Stealing Diamond.

MRS. W. H. MARIETTA LOST IT

Annie's Fellow Gave the Thing Away but the Girl Denies It All—Says She Quarrelled With Her Lover and He Told on Her for Spite.

Annie Kerr is under arrest. It isn't a new experience for Annie, but this time she says she is innocent of wrongdoing. Annie was taken into custody shortly after midnight this morning charged with the theft of a valuable diamond from Mrs. Wade H. Marietta, by whom she has been employed for the past three months.

Harry Shaw, who has been keeping company with Annie, so the story goes, told Mr. Marietta yesterday that Annie had confessed to him that she had taken the ring and had it hid away in her trunk. Annie and Shaw quarrelled, and the fellow went and told.

When questioned at the police station this morning Mrs. Kerr was in tears and denied the charges against her.

"I had a falling out with that fellow," she wailed, "and now he has told that story on me just for spite. I never told him I had taken the ring. You can go to my trunk and search it. It isn't there and he knows I never told him anything of the kind."

Annie first jumped into fame as one of the witnesses in the late jail scandal. Then, some weeks ago, she was arrested for street walking, which cost her $10. Since then she has been leading the simple life until early this morning, when Constable Wilson interrupted her peaceful dreams and hauled her off to the police station, where she spent the balance of the night on the iron mattresses of the ladies' department.

Up to noon it was stated that no information had been sworn against the girl but it is likely that this will be done before Squire Frank Miller this afternoon.

ALTMAN HOTEL WILL BE REBUILT SOON

Owner of Property Says That Another Hostelry Will Go Up on Site at Masontown.

T. Irwin Altman, proprietor of the Moran hotel and owner of the Altman hotel property at Masontown, which was recently burned was in Connellsville Saturday looking over hotels here with a view to rebuilding the Masontown hostelry. He stated positively that the hotel would be rebuilt as soon as the insurance adjusters were through with their investigations.

It is probable that a hotel similar to the design of the Arlington will be erected on the site of the burned hotel.

COKE BROKERAGE

To Be Operated By John Robinson and W. E. Burson.

John Robinson and W. E. Burson are in the coal making contracts for the sale of coal and coke outputs and upon their return will open a coke brokerage here. Mr. Robinson has heretofore maintained an office in the Title & Trust building as an accountant and previous to the suspension of operations at the South Connellsville plate mill Mr. Burson was superintendent of one of the departments there.

PAINTS COUNTRY WITH EGGS.

Br'er Groundhog Bites Horse and Causes a Runaway.

IRWIN, August 1.—John Casperson, an Irwin huckster, last evening brought home the carcass of a 10-pound groundhog, caught after an exciting chase. Casperson was driving along the Delmont road with a load of butter and eggs, when the groundhog dashed under the horse's hoofs.

It bit the horse's leg, a runaway resulting. Eggs and butter were spilled. When Casperson brought the animal to a stop he went back and dispatched the groundhog.

REGULARS MAY GO TO SOMERSET PERMANENTLY

Some Talk of a Detail Being Established There—Week's Encampment Is Too Short.

SOMERSET, August 1.—All is quiet here since the close of the National Guard encampment, and the people of the town as well as many of the soldiers think that the encampment was too short. By noon Saturday all the soldiers and their paraphernalia had been removed from the town and the encampment was a matter of history. It was one of the most successful encampments ever held, and barring the inefficient water supply was a success in every way. The military maneuvers notwithstanding the rain on several days were on a more extensive scale than ever before and the drills and marches were almost continuous. More good military work was accomplished than at any previous encampment and the higher officers were mightily pleased with the splendid showing.

The detachment from the United States regular army left about noon Saturday and will march overland to Fort Meyer, near Washington. There is a troop of cavalry, Troop F, of the Fifteenth Cavalry and a battery of artillery, Battery D of the Third Artillery. This detachment came to Somerset overland.

A large part of the soldiers seem to think that one week is too short a time for the encampment. It seems to take nearly a week to get the camp in shape. The greater portion of the residents of Somerset wish that the encampment would continue for two weeks at least.

It is stated that next year the encampment will be held in Gortysburg and the year following in Indiana, but a reliable report also states that a permanent camp site may be purchased in Somerset and a detachment of regulars stationed here permanently.

There has been much comment on the good behavior of the troops. At the former encampments in Somerset there was much drinking and fighting among the soldiers and a horde of toughs from the cities followed them into camp and committed various outrages and depredations. At this encampment there was comparatively no brawling and the percentage of crooks in town was small.

There were large crowds of people in town every day and the various sham battles between different bodies of troops attracted much attention and excited great interest.

The only thing which tended to mar the camp were various showers, one of which interrupted the review of the troops by Governor Stuart on Tuesday.

ELISHA C. PORTER DEAD NEAR SCOTSDALE

Passes Away After Lingered Illness Following an Accident That Befell Him.

SCOTSDALE, Aug. 2.—Elisha C. Porter, a well known farmer and almost a life-long resident of this community, died at his home one mile west of Scottdale this morning at 2 o'clock, after several months' illness due to a disease of the nerves, aged 64 years. He was taken ill last autumn after suffering a fall from a mowing machine. While crossing a small stream, the mower dropping sideways and he was tumbled backward out of the seat, alighting on his head and shoulders.

For the past 10 months he had been confined to his room, but bore his illness uncomplainingly and with Christian fortitude. The deceased was a son of the late Moses and Amy Porter, early residents of this section. He is survived by his wife, Almira, only sister of Dr. A. W. Strickler of Scottdale, and three sons, Albert L., of the Courier staff, James Lester, representative of a tea and coffee firm, and John Allan, who is on the home farm. Three brothers and a sister survive: J. Dennis Porter, a farmer of near Summit Mines, George W. Porter, on a nearby farm to Scottdale; L. Lindley Porter, a physician of North York, Pa., Washington, and Miss Lydia Porter of Scottdale.

He was for a great many years a member of the Jacobs Creek Methodist Episcopal Church and served for several years as Superintendent of the Sunday school and a member of the Official Board, and for the last 12 years has prepared the communion after this duty was relinquished by his brother-in-law, the late John Keyser, on account of his illness.

Well Known Man Paralyzed and Condition Is Regarded as Serious. By Physicians.

Physicians are puzzled over the case of S. F. Getz of Wheeler, who within the past week has become paralyzed and is in a serious condition at his Wheeler home. Mr. Getz is well known in this section. He was formerly a carriage painter but gave up his job when hard times came and has been doing various kinds of work since.

He drove a wagon most of the time, it is said, and the strain on him is believed to have caused the trouble with which he is now suffering. Last Friday he began feeling badly and gradually lost the use of his lower limbs. Dr. H. F. Atkinson is attending.

DIVORCE PETITIONS NUMEROUS

One Wife Says She Did Not Desert Husband, Who Was Convicted Himself of That Charge—Another Respondent Is Insane Now, It Is Said.

UNIONTOWN, August 2.—Mrs. Bessie Pottelton of Connellsville has petitioned the Orphans' Court for a rule to an Attorney L. A. Howard of Connellsville to show cause why he should not give bond in the sum of $1,000 as guardian of her two daughters, Sarah and Mary M. Stout. A similar rule has been asked to be issued on Isaac F. Wilkey to show cause why he should not give a similar bond in the sum of $1,000 as guardian of Bessie Stout, another daughter.

These are the children of the late Harry E. Stout. In April, 1906, Howard was named guardian of the two children and Wilkey was named some time previous. An examination of the records show that no bond has ever been given.

Mrs. Pottelton, who was formerly Mrs. Stout, intimates that in the case of Howard, there has been irregularities in the administration of the estate. The rules were granted on both defendants.

Molly Stichel has filed her answer to the divorce libel entered by John T. Stichel. She says she is not guilty of desertion, but accuses him of that offense. She further states that on April 1, 1906, her husband was convicted of desertion and sentenced to pay his wife $14 a month. Mrs. Stichel says he is $300 in arrears.

J. A. and T. R. Boord have filed an answer to the divorce libel of Delta B. Boord against John Boord. They are brothers of the respondent, whom they claim is insane and cannot be made defendant in any action until a guardian has been appointed upon whom proper service can be made.

Justice Allen Crawford of Perry township has made answer to the rule upon him to show cause why the case of Steve Kapcha, charged with assault and battery, should not be returned to court. Justice Carson says the case is one that should have been settled and was. He fined the defendant $25 and turned the fine over to the Perry township school board. The matter came to District Attorney Henderson's notice when the prosecutor in the case, William Thompson, claimed the $25 as balm for his loss of time.

Jenn and Emma Brannon were arrested Saturday night for assaulting Johnson Mann of Pt. Marion. Mann was a friend of Emma's until they had a falling out. They met in Uniontown Saturday and Jenn Brannon, Emma's brother, did the starting while his sister is alleged to have encouraged him.

INSURGENTS MAKE HOT FIGHT IN SENATE NOW

Are Flirting For Support of Members From Cattle States Who Are Sore at Free Hides.

United Press Telegram. WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Encouraged by the narrow margin by which the tariff conference report was adopted by the House, everybody is now figuring on the possibility of its defeat in the Senate where its consideration is on today.

The so-called progressive Republicans are flirting with the regulars from the cattle producing States who are dissatisfied with free hides, and are trying to induce them to join forces in an effort to beat the tariff bill. It is possible, but not probable, the insurgents might win and the contingency can readily be imagined where it might require the vote of Vice President Sherman to secure a victory for the organization.

If that should happen it would be the first time in more than 20 years since the Vice President has cast a deciding vote. The tariff bill was received in the Senate at 10 o'clock this morning. Senator Aldrich at once had the conference report laid before the Senate and it was read.

MRS. HARRER SAYS STORY IS RIDICULOUS

Denies Any Difficulty With Boarder For Being Out After 10 O'clock.

SCOTTDALE, Aug. 2.—It is ridiculous, I never said that people should all be in their beds at 10 o'clock," said Mrs. M. J. Harrer spiritedly, as she sat in her home-like boarding house on Market street. "Why, everyone in Scottsdale almost knows that I have kept boarders for years, and they all know that I would make no such rules as it was told in Saturday's Courier I made for one of my boarders." Everything about the cozy home bespoke the sincerity of her statement that one rooming or boarding there would be insured good treatment.

"Really that story was very incorrect, and I can't imagine where it came from in the shape it appeared. Miss Resler who came here as a total stranger, held no conversation with me at night, I at the window she on the sidewalk, and I refusing to allow her to have her luggage. She left a suitcase there when she sought another boarding house, a move that I asked her to make. There was difficulty to be sure. But it came about over the manner in which she desired to settle her bill. Sometimes she failed to come to her meals when I called her, or held me back, and then she wanted to deduct those meals from her weekly bill. That is not the custom in any boarding house or hotel that I ever heard of. The food is cooked and ready, it is no fault of the house that the guest is not there, but the house loses that much. Did you ever hear of deducting the price of meals that are missed?"

The reporter with years of experience in boarding houses in various places admitted that his wide experience had never afforded him such a delightful good fortune. "You paid for them all, didn't you? Except where you gave notice beforehand and were gone several meals at once." The reporter sadly nodded his head in acquiescence.

"But I would not settle on any such basis. I have always received pay for all meals and when Miss Resler suggested that I deduct, I simply refused. I held her suit case until the bill should be paid, but she had no taken to Squire Steiner's office and he did not hear my side of the case. I don't know why. The people here in town where I have lived for 30 years, know that I would keep no one out or refuse to settle with them on such foolish basis as the time they got home. I paid the costs in the matter, and the suit case was delivered when she paid her bill. I have all I can do to make a living without trying to regulate other people's affairs and at the same time I shall not permit them to regulate my financial transactions to suit themselves and to my loss."

SUMMER THEATRICALS COME TO A CLOSE

Manager Robbins Will Not Re-Open Theatre Until the Regular Season.

The Carroll Comedy Company closed its summer engagement at the Solson theatre Saturday night and the popular playhouse is closed once more, not to open until the fall season is under way. The next performance will be on September 6, when the season of 1909-10 will be formally opened.

The stock company made good and did better business here than any company has ever done before. It came intending to stay but two weeks, but business continued so good that an additional week was included. Manager Fred Robbins and Mrs. Robbins will leave in a few days for Atlantic City where they will continue by the sea ways until the call of the central bureau brings them back to Connellsville. During their absence the theatre will be thoroughly renovated.

BIG DAY AT SHADY.

Tenth Regiment Opened the Concert Season There.

Yesterday was a big day at Shady Grove because of the opening of the concert season. The Tenth Regiment Band of Connellsville was the attraction secured by Manager R. B. Coyle and it made a big hit. Two excellent concerts were rendered one in the afternoon and the other at night. The park was crowded at both performances.

This week a free attraction will attract many people to the park, the Rosedale Acrobat Company of New York, being the drawing card. The colored Baptists of Western Pennsylvania, who are holding their convention in Uniontown, are at the park today.

THE TROLLEY STRIKE

Enormous Sum Lost By Pittsburgh Motorists and Conductors.

The street car strike in Pittsburgh only lasted two days—the loss sustained by each individual conductor or motorman was comparatively small, but the total amount lost in wages was over $18,000. This is a striking—no pun intended—instance of how small sums count up. Perhaps one or two dollars do not look very big to you, but just put a couple of dollars in a Savings Account with the First National Bank of Connellsville, every week at 1 per cent interest, and see how it counts up. You'll be both pleased and astonished.

ANOTHER WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Gardiner, Maine.—"I have been a great sufferer from organic troubles and severe female weakness. The doctor said I would have to go to the hospital for an operation, but I could not bear to think of it. I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash—and was entirely cured after three months' use of them."—Mrs. C. A. WILLIAMS, R. F. D. No. 14, Box 20, Gardiner, Me.

No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made exclusively from roots and herbs, a fair trial. This famous medicine for women has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and renewer of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It cures female ills and creates radiant, buoyant female health. If you are ill, for your own sake as well as those you love give it a trial.

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

BRISCOE AND JEFFRIES ARE UNDER ARREST

Justice of the Peace and Constable Charged With Misconduct in Office.

UNIONTOWN, Aug. 2.—Seven informations charging extortion, conspiracy and larceny were brought against Justice of the Peace William Jeffries and Constable William Briscoe, both of New Salem, Meadville township, before Justice of the Peace Daniel M. Blier and John Boyle, by County Detectives Alex McBeth and Frank McLaughlin, Saturday afternoon. The men were arrested by Constables Jud Slater and George Thomas and gave bail for a hearing August 10. Briscoe will be compelled to face three charges of extortion and one of larceny before Boyle and one of conspiracy with Squire Jeffries before Justice Blier, while Jeffries will answer to two charges of extortion before Justice Blier.

It is alleged in the information that Briscoe collected $10 from Sunday violators without warrants and that he confiscated several articles from a prisoner when he refused to pay a fine. In the case of Justice Jeffries it is claimed that he collected $2.50 from merchants in that vicinity who had their stores open on Sunday, without any information being made. The conspiracy charge connects the two men for working the same scheme jointly.

Both defendants stated yesterday that they believed they had acted legally and that the informations are the result of misinformation and possibly spite.

Balancing an Egg. All the world knows how Columbus on a historic occasion made an egg stand on end. After many learned theories had been advanced on balancing the egg he set the egg on end by, of course, smashing down hard enough to form a base, but the problem is capable of still another solution. It is an easy matter to set an egg on a plate, for instance, if you know how. The trick is impossible until the egg has been boiled in an upright position. The position of the intended yoke at the end of the shell lowers the center of gravity until the sphere can be spun or even balanced with ease.

TRAIN TAKES TWO LEGS; DEATH FOLLOWS

Russell Cooley of York Run Was Lying Unconscious on Railroad Track.

UNIONTOWN, Aug. 2.—Suspicion of foul play is entertained by relatives of Russell Cooley, of York Run, who died at the Uniontown hospital at 11:30 o'clock, yesterday morning, of injuries sustained on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, one mile south of Fairchance, between 3 and 4 o'clock in the morning. Both legs were cut off.

A freight going south ran over Cooley. A brakeman was riding the pilot of the engine and saw the form of the unfortunate man on the track. He yelled at the prostrate man and also for the engineer to stop. Apparently Cooley did not hear him and the train was going too fast to stop. The engine and three cars ran over Cooley's legs, the left being ground off near the hip and the other between the knee and ankle. His relatives believe that he was waylaid and his body placed on the track.

Russell Cooley was 20 years of age on April 4 last. He was born in Georgian township and was a son of the late Lewis Cooley. His mother is also dead. On April 15, 1903, he married Miss Dacie Brownfield, a step daughter of Charles Nycum, of Uniontown, who survives, with three small children. The following brothers and sisters also survive: Mrs. R. P. Walls, of Murphy street, Uniontown; Mrs. George David, of York Run; Mrs. Brown Bradlee, of Smithfield; Mrs. John Lilley, of Fairchance, and Richard, Edwin and Harry Cooley, of Fairchance and vicinity.

J. WOOD CLARK CHOICE OF LEADERS

Indiana County Democrat Is to Be Nominated for Auditor General.

J. Wood Clark, a lawyer of Indiana, is the choice of the Democratic leaders for the nomination for Auditor General in the State convention to be held at Harrisburg on Wednesday. He authorized the announcement of his candidacy last night.

Clark has never wavered in his Democracy and is extremely popular with the regulars throughout the State. While he has always taken an active part in the affairs of his party, he has never asked for office. He is a son of Silas M. Clark, who died in 1891, while a member of the Supreme Court.

As Justice S. Leslie Mestreat of Uniontown, is a Democrat, the east is claiming the right to nominate the candidate for Supreme Court Justice. The leaders agree that an eastern man should be selected. The candidates are C. LaRue Munson of Williamsport and Judge Charles B. Staples of Monroe county. Munson is making an active canvass for the nomination and he is generally conceded to be the winner. When Mestreat was nominated, Munson made a hard fight for the place.

Former Congressman George W. Kipp of Towanda, is apparently without opposition for the nomination for State Treasurer. DeWitt C. DeWitt of Towanda, is in charge of Kipp's campaign.

Some mention has been made of Bruce Sterling of Fayette, for Auditor General, but he would not give any consideration to the matter. R. W. Irwin of Washington, who was discussed for Supreme Court Justice, is not a candidate.

Congressman A. Palmer Mitchell of Stroudsburg will be temporary chairman of the convention. No decision has been reached about the permanent presiding officer.

BASEBALL.

FOUL TIPS.

(Continued from 5th Page.) being battered with tips down here Friday. Bill took no chances. That man Hilley pulled off his usual stunt of letting Slicox put the third strike over on him at a critical point in the game. Don't wonder that Uniontown gets a little sore at the cotton topped infielder. It is a bad habit for any good ball player to cultivate. Hurry for Dutch Myers. Harry laid down the nicest bunt at the right time the Champs ever saw. Myers got into the game right Saturday and played it right up to the handle. The Herald thinks Roberts has it on Slicox in a thousand ways. Guess again old man. Name just one of the ways Roberts has it on our Tom and we won't press an explanation of the other 999.

The Herald has Slicox giving two bases on balls. Who was the other fortunate individual? We can remember only Phillips going up on a pass. Also note that, according to The Herald, Roberts gave but one pass. To our best knowledge, Gilligan walked twice and Morgan once, which looks like three to us.

Barnes Gilligan played a swell game at first base. His batting lamps were not in trim although he worked Roberts for two free trips.

Kid Hagan was the one bright, shining star in the Cokers' galaxy of constellations. The Kid is our one best bet in time of need.

The Champs evidently had designs on Ike Francis. They battered eight sixfers at him but these, with two throws, were accepted in grand style. Ike also made the Champs look foolish when he outguessed them with a bunt.

Dutch Myers had a single and a sacrifice. The suicide was his first this season but it was a beauty. Dutch was right in the game.

Dave Calhoun, who is batting at a 304 clip just now, was the timely batter. He singled and stole, and would have scored had a hit been forthcoming, while his sacrifice fly gave the Cokers their only run.

Morgan is getting his lamps on the ball. His one single was a corker.

PROBABLE NEW PRESIDENT OF NATIONAL LEAGUE.

It is probable that John A. Heydler, acting president of the National baseball league, will succeed to the presidency made vacant by the tragic death of Harry Pulliam. When Mr. Pulliam went on a long vacation because of illness Mr. Heydler as secretary of the league assumed the duties of president at the request of the board of directors and capably administered the affairs of the big organization. The constitution of the league requires the directors to elect a new president within thirty hours after the death of an incumbent, but this was impossible following Pulliam's death, because several of the directors were in remote parts of the country on their vacations.

The next time Russell came up in the pinch Roberts passed him. Wise youth.

Hilly Rann was unfortunate and got the ball up in the air nearly every time. In the field there were no flies on William, who gathered in everything that came his way.

Ben Frailey caught a good game and pegged nicely. He was off with the stick, but none of the Cokers were hitting extra hard.

Slicox didn't have a folding chance in the 11 innings but his slab work made up for that.

Larry Sutton, the scout, makes a pertinent criticism of the league catchers, all of whom "give away" the waste ball play by standing way to one side of the pan. This lets the runner know exactly what to look for.

Jack Cotter has wired the local management for transportation to Connellsville. Cotter wants back the worst kind of a way but there is nothing doing. Jack jumped last year and came back filled with good intentions which lasted until this season, when he jumped and left the team in a bad hole. Jack will get a taste of what it feels to be suspended.

CHAPTER IX.

AT the end of the first month passed in their new home Mrs. Brooks' joy in the sudden and great change in her husband's fortunes in the steamship company remained undiminished. Her mother, Mrs. Harris, had come to look upon him with great respect and to be rather proud of her son-in-law, who had belied her dire prognostications and upset all her firmly rooted ideas and convictions by rising in the world.

As to Brooks himself, the confidence of his optimism had worn off considerably. He did not share to any extent in the light heartedness of his wife, who diffused happiness and rippled it in joyous music on the piano and in songs that had smoothed out the creases of care on her father's brow when she sang to him in the days of her girlhood. He had become more and more thoughtful, with lapses at unexpected times into absent-mindedness. Moreover, of late, symptoms of his former ill humor and nervous irritability had reappeared.

"Goodness, Emma, one would hardly know you," exclaimed Beth to her one evening after dinner, to which Mrs. Brooks had invited her mother and sister. "Your dress is a dream, and at last you were positively radiant."

She had followed Emma into her bedroom and was gazing in admiration at her sparkling eyes and her cheeks rosy with health.

"I am happy," admitted Emma, putting her arm around her affectionately.

"Do you know, dearie, I'm just beginning to know who and what you are?"

Highly amused at the girl's patronizing manner and not at all inclined to take her seriously, Emma looked at her with assumed gravity.

"How's that, little sister?" she inquired.

"Please don't call me 'little sister,'" objected Beth. "You're always making fun of me."

"My dear Beth, it is you who are always making fun of yourself," Emma told her.

"Indeed I'm not!"

"Why not laugh and play and just be a girl—a real tomboy? After all, that's the thing. You are only eighteen, while I have reached years of discretion. I'm twenty-five, you know, and awfully staid and wise in consequence."

"You weren't a tomboy?"

"Oh, yes, I was until I fell in love. You were a wee bit of a little maid then, and after I fell in love I became a sly little goose like all girls in love, and then—"

"You married Joe?"

"Yes," said Emma seriously, "and that's why I want you to have such a good time now, while you can. Of course I hope you'll not have the hard pull that Joe and I have had—I mean when you are married—but one never can tell."

"Never mind the past now, Emma. Think how happy you are."

"I know. It is good to be living once again, but the best of it all is that Joe has succeeded. When mother admits it. Think of it!"

"She even likes him," confessed Beth. "My dear, you know that mother likes most any one who has healthy indications of a bank account."

"Emma," chided the girl, "you ought to be ashamed."

"I'm not," laughed her sister. "I'm too contented. I don't think that I shall ever forget the night, nearly seven weeks ago, when Joe came home with the good news, his salary more than tripled and six months' back pay."

"Joe never thought Captain Williams would do it for him."

"No, no! I. And the way it was done! You know the captain and Jimmy had been gone three days before Joe knew the good news."

"When are they coming back? Not for a month anyway."

"Joe says he doesn't know."

"Isn't it funny that with all his luck he doesn't seem contented?"

Emma became grave.

"He's worried, poor dear, and I can't make it out," she said. "Perhaps he's so anxious to succeed in his new position."

In the parlor Mrs. Harris sat fanning herself, for it was a very warm day. She was dressed in a gown of summer flimsy that would have been more suitable to her had she been, say, fifteen years younger, and she was engaged in her usual pleasant occupation of criticizing—or "knocking," as Joe called it.

Brooks was in dinner coat and bore other external evidences of his prosperity, which, however, was being purchased at considerable physical cost, for he had become thinner and was pale and haggard. The worry his new position occasioned him was plain to be seen, and he was in an extremely sultry mood and as nervous as the proverbial cat.

"As was saying to Joe," observed Mrs. Harris, turning to Emma and Beth, "for a hotel of this character the coffee is not what it might be. It's terribly bitter. Otherwise I liked the dinner. Yes, on the whole, I liked the dinner. But if I were Joe, I'd complain about your waiter."

"What's the matter with him?" asked Emma.

"Rather impertinent and—"

"What waiter suits me, and I haven't heard Emma kicking," said Joe.

But Mrs. Harris was not to be suppressed by any snubbing from him.

"Still," she persisted, "I think for the money you are paying here—"

"For the money I am paying here," he retorted, "I'm satisfied. It seems to me that that is all there is to it."

"Mother, dear, please don't find fault," urged Emma. "It is all so much better than it has been. I think you should be happy to see things as they are."

"So much better than Emma's had for so long," chimed in Beth.

Brooks smiled at her and, gathering up some more papers from the table, retreated with them to his chair and began to peruse them rather feverishly.

"I never read the papers any more," declared Mrs. Harris. "All they have are scandals, murders and men who steal money from their firms. My—I don't know what the world is coming to."

"Wasn't it terrible about that man yesterday walking out of the bank with a small fortune?" said Beth.

"I can't understand how a man can deliberately steal," sniffed her mother, "especially when there isn't a chance on earth of getting away."

"He's the man who gave all the money to some woman, isn't he?" Emma wanted to know.

"Yes, he'll have plenty of time to think it over. The penitentiary isn't a bit too good for men like him."

"I felt so sorry for his wife, poor woman," remarked Beth. "She'll have to stand most of the trouble."

Brooks jumped up impatiently, biting his nails with annoyance.

"Where's the rest of this paper?" he demanded. "I want the part with the racing chart. It's marked 'Past Performance.'"

"Oh, I know—what Jimmy calls the dope sheet," said Emma. "There it is."

Mrs. Harris looked horrified.

"Joe, you certainly aren't interested in races—horse races?" she interrogated.

"Yes, I am," he snapped. "I don't play 'em, but I like to look 'em over. What of it?"

"They're awful," declared Beth. "That's exactly why most men steal money."

"Well, dearie, Joe isn't stealing money or playing races, so don't get worried," commented Emma, a little testily.

Mrs. Harris persisted.

"Captain Williams says that the race track ruins more young men and—"

Her son-in-law had been waxing more and more exasperated.

"For heaven's sake," he broke out angrily, wiping the perspiration from his face, "can't you find something better to talk about than ruined men, thieves and fellows who go wrong?"

"Why, Joe, what's the matter?" inquired his wife, gazing at him in astonishment.

He turned his face toward her, and there was a look as of untold agony and apology in his eyes, under which the dark circles appeared to have deepened, as he replied:

"I'm tired and nervous. I think I'll walk down the street."

"Oh, but you've got to take us to the theater," Beth told him. "Mother hasn't seen the play at the Renaissance, and you can't get seats—not a single one—even from speculators. I promised to take her."

"Where do I come in?"

Mrs. Harris answered for her: "You just take us; call for us after the show and put us on a car."

"We simply can't miss this chance, can we, mamma?" said Beth. "You will take us and come for us, won't you, Joe?"

"Oh, I suppose so," he acquiesced, a little wearily.

At that moment the telephone bell rang, and Emma answered it.

"Yes, right up," she instructed the operator and, hanging up the receiver, turned with an eager smile.

"I've got a surprise for you," she said. "Guess who's calling? Some one who wasn't expected for a month."

"Jimmy," cried Beth.

"Jimmy Smith, straight back from Guatemala."

Joe's eyes widened, and the little color in it faded from his face. He was very much startled by this unexpected visit, but kept sufficient control over himself not to make the fact too apparent.

"Is Captain Williams with him?" inquired Mrs. Harris.

"I don't know," answered Emma. "I wonder what brings him back? It wasn't expected for a month or six weeks."

"I suppose the captain's with him," surmised Beth.

Her mother expressed the hope that he was.

"So do I," said Emma. "I want to thank him for Joe's raise."

"You'll do nothing of the kind!" exploded Brooks furiously. "I want you all to understand here and now that my business is my business. I don't want it discussed with either Smith or Williams. What I've got I've got, and it is nobody's affair but mine. Now, if any of you have got anything to say about me or what I do, say it to me or shut up."

"Joe, how can you?" reproached his wife, taken completely aback by this savage and uncalculated display of anger.

"Well, I declare!" ejaculated Mrs. Harris, bridling up. "I've never been talked to so to all my life and—"

The doorbell rang, and she subsided, shaking back in her chair and fanning her red face vigorously.

Mrs. Brooks opened the door, and Jimmy stood revealed with his white smile, his face tanned brown by the sun of the tropics.

"Welcome home, little stranger!" exclaimed Emma heartily.

"Hello, Emma! How are you?" he said, taking her, outstretched hand.

"Ladies, I salute you. The prodigal has returned from the distant land of chili con carne and fat ladies wearing mantillas to receive his overdose of American grub."

"Look at him! He's as brown as an Indian!" laughed Beth, giving him a cordial handshake.

"Where's Captain Williams?" asked Mrs. Harris.

"All in due time, when I spin my yarn," drawled Jimmy.

He went over to Brooks and shook hands with him.

"Glad to see you, Joe," he said. "Thank you, Jimmy. Same to you. You look immense."

"I'm better than that. Now, if you folks will sit down I'll tell you the story of my wonderful adventures, lying only when necessary to protect my unimpaired reputation. How is that, Beth, unimpaired reputation? Pretty good, eh?"

"But Captain Williams and the story?" urged Emma.

"What I want to know," observed her mother, "is, did the captain come with you?"

"So do I," said Brooks, with hardly concealed anxiety.

"Well, you know it took me two months to do all this, and you can't expect me to tell this story as if it was a journey in the subway."

"Jimmy, you're exasperating," remonstrated Emma.

"I was saying—say, Emma, you look all right in that dress," he broke off, contemplating her with admiration. She stamped her foot impatiently.

"Never mind me. Talk!"

"And please say something," added Beth.

"Strong!" he laughed. "Thank you, Beth! Well, you know cap and I were going to make a trip to every port of call the Latin-American company has, but when we got to Guatemala, we found out that a couple of those down there, being out of jobs, had concluded to pass the time away by pulling off one of their monthly revolutions and, among other things, were getting very gay with our property."

"You mean war?" demanded Beth, deeply interested.

"Not according to Hoyle. This game was just for conversation. Anyway, things looked a little bad, so we stayed there until one of the dons threatened to put us in jail and burn up our warehouses. We were delayed a couple of weeks, and one morning the army of forty-two generals and three privates saw the United States cruiser Brooklyn steam into port all painted up, with a lot of powerful bluejackets on board, looking for trouble. So they postponed their change of government indefinitely. We had been delayed so long by them fellows—"

"Jimmy," objected Beth. "Don't call them 'them fellows.'"

"No?"

"No. Say 'those fellows.'"

"Well, Beth, I've known those greasers down there for fourteen years as 'them fellows,' and if I called them anything else I'm afraid I'd have to be introduced again."

"But Captain Williams?" insisted Mrs. Harris.

"Yes, where is he?" said Brooks.

"Well, we decided to come home. Captain left on the steamer by the way of New Orleans, and a couple of days later I came direct to New York."

"Then he is here?" said Mrs. Harris in a tone of gratification.

"I suppose he is, unless he was shipwrecked on the way."

"But you haven't told us anything about the war," Beth reminded him. "Was it exciting?"

"Well, as the only things that were shot at were several hundred months and as I'm a kid hand at repeating conversations, I will have to leave the details to your imaginations."

"I consider that a most interesting story," pouted Beth, "and, besides, you're keeping us from the theater."

"All going?" queried Smith.

"No, just Beth and me," explained Mrs. Harris. "Emma and Joe have seen the play, and we've got the last two seats."

Emma accompanied her mother and sister to her bedroom to help them don their hats.

When the door had closed upon them Smith's attitude changed entirely. The smile vanished from his face, and he went over to Brooks and placed both hands on his shoulders.

"Joe, you're found out," he announced.

"How found out?" demanded Brooks, jumping up and facing him, very white.

"The money you've taken."

"If you say I've taken money, you're a liar!" retorted Brooks, with an attempt at fierce indignation. But the words came falteringly between his blue, pursed lips.

"Joe, Joe," rebuked his friend sternly, "this ain't no time to four flush with me. I'm your friend, and you need one now, boy. Besides, there's Emma to think of."

"I don't know what you mean," he protested in a choking voice.

"That story of it revolution was a lie," explained Smith. "Williams has been home three days. He has had the books looked over at night. He seemed to know what you were doing from the time you took the first dollar. I've reason to think he went away simply to give you a free rein and get even with you for what you said to him that night at the club. Joe, we've got to pull together now, and you've got to be on the square with me."

Brooks sank limply into a chair and covered his face with his hands.

"What shall I do?" he moaned.

"Sit tight and save your wood."

"But they'll send me to jail, won't they?"

"You took that chance, Joe, boy. But we'll have to fight and fight hard to get you out of it. You can't run away. You're watched." Interrupted his friend. "Detectives are downstairs, and if you make a false move they'll nab you and spoil every chance."

"Jimmy, I'm done; I know I'm done," he almost whimpered, plunging again into the bottomless depth of despair.

"Keep your nerve. What have you told Emma?"

"She doesn't know."

"Of course she doesn't. I mean, where did you say you got all the money?"

"I told her my salary was raised, and some back pay."

"I'm on. Now brace up. You look all in. Here come the ladies."

"They are ready, Joe," announced Mrs. Brooks.

"Come on, my boy, and take the family to the show," ordered Mrs. Harris.

"I'm ready," he replied, pulling himself together with great effort. "Jimmy, wait till I come back."

Emma and Smith accompanied them to the elevator.

"Hurry back, Joe," was Emma's injunction to her husband as the car disappeared from view.

Heaving the Lead.

The steamer was loaded with pig lead and was slowly picking her way up the dangerous river. The mate was forward, and as they approached a spot he turned fiercely to a deck hand.

"Why don't you heave the lead?" he roared.

The mate had only recently embraced his profession, and technical expressions were as yet so much what he beyond him.

"Heave," the lead, is it, your honor?" Sure!

"Why don't you heave the lead?" he roared.

Where should I heave it?

HE ROARED.

THE MATE TURNED PURPLE. "OVERBOARD, YOU FATHER!" he cried.

And straightway Patrick seized one of the pigs of lead and threw it overboard.

The mate felt that mere words were useless at a time like this, and he made an effort to save the pig as it went over. Alas, in doing so he overbalanced and went in with a splash into the dark river.

Just then the captain took a hand in the discussion from the bridge.

"Now, then, you forward, why don't you heave the lead?"

"Please, sir, it's already heaved," said Pat.

HE WAS NOT A FLIRT.

Therefore He Rejected the Woman's Attempts at Familiarity.

He was riding homeward, comfortably seated and reading his paper. Being a trifle nervous, he was applying himself even more closely to his paper than other homegoing passengers.

Thus intent in the day's news, he was startled when a woman came up beside him and touched him lightly on the shoulder, at the same time casting a longing eye on his seat.

He is a polite man, and he got up. "A woman with that much nerve is entitled to a seat," he muttered to himself. "The idea of a woman deliberately nudging a man out of his seat! Other women standing near by laughed unreservedly. His wife's embarrassment behind his paper, for he felt that his good nature had been imposed upon and that the laugh was on him."

By and by there was a vacant seat next to the one he had given up to the woman, and he sat down once more. The woman turned and looked at him amusedly. He could feel her gaze, even though he made a bluff at being intensely interested in his paper. Pretty raw, it seemed to him, for a woman deliberately to take the seat of a total stranger and then sit there and laugh at him because he was such a mark.

Then the woman spoke to him. "Aren't you going to talk to me?" she asked.

"How could I stand her familiarity so long?" "Well, of all the—!" He stopped right there when he looked around and recognized her. It was his wife—Cleveland Leader.

COOKS' SHOPS.

They Were the Beginnings of the Modern Restaurant.

In primitive times the only places in London where the public could be entertained with food had been the cooks' shops. The famous East Cheap was a great thoroughfare, down which the stalls of the butchers alternated with those of the cooks. You chose a joint at the flesh market, and you carried it next door to be cooked for you by a certain hour. If you wished for wine, you must bring that with you, for the cooks sold no liquor, although they seem to have provided, as time went on, more and more of the natural accompaniments of meat, such as bread, vegetables and pastry.

This habit continued until well into the reign of Elizabeth, and so long as such an inconvenient custom prevailed there could have been no real comfort for any citizen who chose to dine abroad. He must have had as much trouble with portage and baskets as a country party has today at a picnic. But about the time that Shakespeare came up to London a remarkable change took place in the customs of the town, and the practice of public hospitality and entertainment was singularly facilitated.

The nature of this change lay in the sudden development of the tavern and the consequent withdrawal of the cookshop. The worshipful company of pastmasters, as the cooks were called, ceased to enjoy the monopoly of providing food and drink.—Edmund Gosse in Harper's Magazine.

HUGO AS AN ARTIST.

The Great French Writer's Opinion of His Own Drawings.

When Victor Hugo's "Marion Desjardins" was read before the troupe of the Porte-Saint-Martin theater, the actor Lafontaine, then a young man, protested against the insignificant role assigned him, in which he would have only ten lines to recite. Hugo promptly reduced him to silence by thundering, "Ten lines of Victor Hugo are something not to be refused—for they endure."

Hugo attached a similar exaggerated significance to everything he did and to every object that was in any way associated with him.

For instance, he considered his drawings, which were for the most part commonplace enough, of sufficient importance to make them the subject of a testamentary provision. In his will of Aug. 31, 1881, he wrote, "I give my drawings and everything which shall be drawn by me to the National Library of Paris, which will be one day the Library of the United States of Europe."

Hugo's drawings are said to have been produced more often than not in the following manner: If a blot of ink chanced to fall on his paper while he held his pen aloft in quest of a word or rhyme, he enlarged the spot absentmindedly and made additions to it instinctively under the influence of a species of subconscious direction until he had produced a sinister moonlight scene or a "venerable bourgeois dominating with its bristling ruins the shuddering waters of a river of legend." He elaborated with great care, however, during his lifetime, the Guernsey certain crude impressions he had transferred to his sketchbook during his journeys in the valley of the Rhine. With the Champs did it, and held first place. The deciding game of last week's series was Uniontown after a desperate 11 inning struggle, but defeat reflected no discredit on the Connelville boys. They fought a game fight and deserved to win, but the fates smiled otherwise.

To the lover of good baseball, regardless of who wins, Saturday's contest filled the bill. Both teams played brilliant ball. It was a pitchers' battle from the start with both twirlers getting well edged support. Neither side made an error while the hits were well scattered and scarce. The final tally on bingles was eight for Uniontown and seven for Connelville.

Two players outshone the rest, with the pitchers eliminated. They were Kid Hagan the Cokers' diminutive third sacker, and Doc Carles, who pulls teeth in the winter time and is a scolding most of this summer out in Uniontown's middle pasture. The Kid was the one best bet in the brilliant game, his holding being something worth the trip to Uniontown to see. Carles was the stellar bluffer of the day, getting a quartette of bingles, the last one putting an end to the contest. He battled in the Champs' two runs.

The Cokers might have won. They should have, in fact, but like Francis overlooked a good hit in the fourth inning and failed to follow up and run Rudolph at second base. Then Carles hit and scored the flying Dutchman, giving the Champs their first run. But for this game would have gone to the Cokers, 1 to 0, in nine innings.

But aside from this one play the work of both teams was above reproach. The Cokers could not hit with men on the bases, save once, but that man Roberts pitched a swell game. His curves broke nicely and he had the Cokers balked with his cross-fire delivery.

Of the two, however, Silcox had a shade the best of the argument. For ten innings he mowed down the opposing batsmen without giving the sign of a base on balls. In the eleventh he purposely passed Phillips, but Carles proved equal to the occasion of getting Rabbit Miller safely from third base to the pen with the winning tally.

After Gilligan had been retired in the opening inning, Hagan singled but was caught when he tried to pile for second. Joe Francis was out. Uniontown went down in order. A queer play was pulled off when Uniontown batted, which cost Jimmy Miller a bingle. The Rabbit hit a sharp one at Kid Hagan. The ball struck the Kid on the ankle, caromed into the Francis' hands and Miller was thrown out at first. In the second session, with two down, Morgan singled but Dunn popped to Miller. McCloskey got a bingle for Uniontown, but two were out and Carles was third. Gilligan reached first in the third on a walk but Hagan flew to left with two out.

In the fourth session, with two men out, Calhoun singled and stole. Morgan walked and Dunn popped to Miller once more.

There were three breaks in the fourth session, one of which went the Cokers' way and two for the Champs. Rudolph singled past Hagan, the ball taking a bad bound just as the little infielder was set for it. One man was out and Phillips, always dangerous, crashed slider down the first base line. Gilligan stuck up his glove after leaping in the air, and pulled down the hit, although he could not hold it. He touched Phillips out and buried the ball to the Francis to get Rudolph. He took the throw but Rudy had passed him. At this point he was caught napping. Rudolph overran the bag several feet and would have been an easy out. Dunn played deep when Carles came up but the Uniontown man's bingle over second base bounded badly and got away. Rudolph scoring.

The Uniontown contingent screamed with joy when the run came across. It looked mighty big, but not for long. In the sixth the Cokers came back.

Kid Hagan opened this session with a clean single past Hilley. Ike Francis outgassed the other fellows and laid down a bunt which Roberts and Miller both vainly attempted to field but failed. Two were on and none out. Then Dutch Myers showed the stuff he is made of by laying down the nicest kind of a bunt along the third base line. Dunn was thrown out but the play was close.

Hagan and Francis advanced on the play and then big Dave Calhoun was the man of the hour with a long sacrifice fly to left field, which permitted the Kid to score. Morgan tried to bring Ike home but his short fly went to McCloskey after a hard run.

Kid Hagan pulled off the feature play of the day in the last half of this inning when Doc Carles smashed a hot one down the third base line. The ball looked good for a pair of pillows until the Kid stopped its career with his bare hand and threw the doctor out at first. This lightning play dazed the Champs so badly that the next two were easy outs on flies to Morgan and Myers.

Things looked bad in the ninth for the Cokers when, after Hilley allowed the usual third strike to be called on him, Rudolph singled. Phillips flew to Morgan but Carles hit safely. Carles singled but McCloskey hit to Dunn and Doc was tossed out at second.

The Cokers' best chance to score came in the tenth when Hagan hit to left for two bases after two were out. Ike Francis was retired, however, by McCloskey and Carles.

In the eleventh it was all right. Rabbit Miller, after being warned against crowding the plate, hit to left. Hilley sacrificed and Rudolph flew to Morgan. Silcox let Miller get too long a lead off second and the midget stole the sack. Phillips came up with his long swing but was wisely passed. Then Silcox slipped one over on Carles, who raised it to left and Miller scored. The top:

SATURDAY

JULY 31, WE'LL BEGIN OUR SEMI-ANNUAL SALE OF

Children's Dresses at Half Price

REMNANTS

Only two sales of this kind are conducted in this store in the year, at the close of every six months' business. Right after inventory comes the sale of Remnants. It's always a big event, but this year it will be greater than ever in the past. It is the one sale in the year in which we do not consider the cost, for remnants and odd lots of merchandise have no business remaining in any store. They can't remain here. Your gain is apparent in the prices quoted below, but even if you do secure three and four times what your money ordinarily secures you, even though the loss is ours. We gain in clean stocks for next season and thereby gain in the end, but the present pleasure is all yours.
